Private Plane Crashes At Camp Grayling

A private airplane equipped with ponotons floats crashed in a wooded section near Division Hill at Camp Grayling just prior to the Memorial services held Sunday morning.

The pilot, Edwin J. Gilbert of Battle Creek, was trying to land his ship in the camp grounds due to an empty fuel tank. In avoiding an estimated 8,200 people gathered for the service, the ship crashed into a group of trees. The pilot escaped injury and the airplane was not damaged severely. It was necessary to strip the ship of its wings to get it to the ground however.

The plane was owned by the pilot's brother, Harold and Robert S. Libbeck, both of Gaylord.

Superhighway Promised To Feed North Tourists To Resorts of This Area

Northland Resorts have the promise of a highway funneling thousands of cars into their driveways — one-way or another.
The tug-of-war between toll roads and free superhighways is the focal point of one of the bitterest disputes in years.

On one end of the rope is the Michigan Turnpike Authority and on the other end is Highway Commissioner Charles M. Ziegler. The people are in the middle.

Ziegler, really, must play a dual role. He is also a member of the turnpike authority, a situation that has had him dodging brickbats from all directions for two years.

The authority is guided by experienced hands who insist on a 113-mile toll road between Flat Rock and Saginaw.

Ziegler is pushing work on a competitive route, a relocation of US 10 from Detroit to Saginaw and of US 25 from Detroit to the Ohio border near Toledo.

"We've got a lot of money tied up in that road now and we can't walk away and leave it," Ziegler said.

Turnpike champions, headed by the authority chairman, George N. Higgins, Ferndale Republican,
dastardly doublecross.

"Ziegler has caused the authority a lot of problems," Higgins said. "But I don't think he'll block us anymore."

From a cash-on-the-line standpoint, the turnpike will cost $165 million and the free highway $138 million. Ziegler said he could finish the free road in three years.

Higgins said the turnpike can be completed in 39 months after the bonds are sold. They will be retired from tolls.

There was a poignant moment when Congress killed President Eisenhower's highway aid plan, which would have given Michigan federal money for interstate highways at a 90-10 ratio, federal to state matching.

"If we got that, we can finish the free highway in three years," Ziegler said.

When the bill was killed in Congress, Ziegler said state money would do the job in the same time. Higgins, mourning the death of the program in congress on the surface, privately was jubilant.

"This will put all the more steam behind the turnpike program. We'll get started as soon as we can and build the toll road."

Serious questions have arisen from the situation. If there is to be a competing road — with the same superhighway construction — will New York financiers go for the revenue bonds?

Will motorists prefer the free superhighway to the toll road, creating a boycott and a virtually impossible financing problem for the turnpike?

Ziegler denies he doublecrossed the turnpike authority. He said he was assured by the engineers for the turnpike that a free route along the same general route "would have no effect."

There have been hints that the 1956 Legislature recognized the light spot occupied by Higgins, a former senator, could remove Ziegler from the authority.

On the other hand, Ziegler may be running for re-election next year. Republicans would think twice before jeopardizing his chances against a Democrat.

Best bet here is that the turnpike authority, with Higgins at the helm, will be told to go ahead.
Ziegler will be told to take it a little easy and maybe change the route of his free road a bit.

Water Wonderland may be junked as the license slogan in 1956.

It became a hot weather issue for Secretary of State James M.
Hare, with touches of legal trouble and with visual acuity of motorists.

Hare said that dozens of motorists had written, complaining that the "Water Wonderland" slogan at the bottom of the plates squeezed the numbers into hard-to-identify proportions.

So, Hare asked a special committee to look into the problem, among others.

Then came the legal questions.
An unidentified attorney in Detroit asked whether the state was violating its own law against advertising of any kind on the license plates. Hare answered:
"You've got me, but I'll find out."

Here is still checking with Atty.
Gen. Thomas M. Kavanagh. The law plainly states that there shall be no advertising of any kind on a license plate.

Here, mourning the state of affairs which has the 1956 plates rolling off the times 20,000 a day at Jackson State Prison, figured the question would be answered before production of 1957 plates.

"I expect the committee to recommend that the slogan be dropped for 1957 and thereafter," he said.

Council respectively, were among the guests at the Grayling Golf Club last Wednesday when the husband attended encampments here years ago when he was a member of the Michigan National Guard and later as the commander-in-chief while the Governor of Michigan in 1931 and 1932. Mrs.

Millard also told of her husband attending encampment here while a member of the Michigan National Guard. Also attending was Mrs. Gordon MacDonald wife of the present commanding general of the 46th division of the Michigan National Guard. Fifty-one ladies enjoyed the afternoon at the club house. Serving on the committee for the affair were:
Mrs. Alfred Sorenson, Mrs. B. E.
Hoenig, Mrs. Charles Piper, Mrs.
Willard Cornell, Mrs. E. J. Olson, Mrs. E. L. Sparkes and Mrs. Jack Cook.

At the regular meeting of the

SMALL BUSINESS

A known axiom in restaurant business is surest way to go broke is to leave back door unlocked.

This is basically lesson in reports released so far by Commission of Organization of the Government, known as Hoover Commission.

Unfortunately, deep, sincere, far reaching work of this committee is not getting publicity it deserves. However, highlights C.W. Harter such as revelation Armed Forces have 80 year supply of canned hamburgers, get press notices, hence real significance is lost.

But again and again through reports, commission calls attention to fact bureaucracy has managed to evade intent of Congress with resulting waste. It also calls on Congress to ask of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, to say various situations and make recommendations to correct bureaucratic abuses.

At present reports show, there is actually no way to pull up reins on bureaucrats running amuck. Congress as a body is too busy to make checks needed on active branch of government. Sedition does a commitee into this type of work, as recently when Sen. Harry Byrd, Va., exposed F.B.I. operations.

So it is reasoned Congress should have a constant watchdog reporting to it. The Comptroller General's office is regarded in some quarters as logical place to place this responsibility. This office, established in 1924, provides that Comptroller General, at National Institute of Governmental appoints for a term of 15 years, check all claims made against the government.

Yet this office lacks both power and staff to carry on investigation work into government functional affairs in same manner Federal Bureau of Investigation works in field of security.

For example it has been charged past few months on occasions that Harold Stassen, as head of foreign aid operations, diverted funds to projects not within intent of Congress.

Neither is it necessary at all times to throw criminal charges at someone when government funds are misused. Insurance is as costly as criminal intent.

For example, when celebrated hamburger story broke, scores of ranking brass were called up before Congress. Yet it is rather suspicious to expect professional men to be businessmen. And it is questionable with the complexity of modern warfare and defense whether nation has any right to expect military men to acquire business knowledge.

In short, Hoover Commission reports already indicate great lack in American government.
There is the absence of impartial, non partisan business-trained officials, with authority to blow the whistle on bureaucrats.

And now that foreign aid program, under its new name, Mutual Cooperation Administration is moving with its billions of dollars into the State Department, need for such authority becomes imperative. As shown by many instances, striped pants career boys running around wrinkling brows over global problems are not inclined to stoop to such mundane matters as getting a buck's worth for a dollar.

A New Kind Of "Cure"

To Avoid Sudden Death" is the title of an article by Steven M. Spencer in the July 16th issue of the Saturday Evening Post. This, obviously, is a matter of life and death to everyone has a direct and burning interest. The article deals with a simple and relatively inexpensive device which, according to some safety experts, will reduce the toll of death and injury on the highways as much as 50 per cent—automobile safety belts. "No medical miracle swift of a cure for cancer or cancer could, in one swift stroke, save thousands of years of life." Last year motor vehicle accidents accounted for 36,300 deaths and 1,250,000 injuries and the toll was somewhat higher in 1953.

The seat belt itself is not a new development by any means. Belts have been used in planes for more than 20 years. They have also been generally used in automobiles for a long period of time. More than 30 million seats are for sale. "But," Mr. Spencer says, "as far as the family hard-top they are a new and relatively unglamorous gadget. . . . To gain acceptance, the seat belt must overcome widespread lack of information and some misinformation. Finally they must compete for the attention of car owners who are usually more interested in horsepower and body styles than in safety devices."

In gathering data for his article, Mr. Spencer spent two weeks reading accident reports and talking to accident victims. He cites a number of actual and typical cases where people using safety belts walked away from accidents—the kind of accidents that, without the belts, would have inevitably resulted in death or serious injury. He also cites the opinions of police, scientists, and other authorities who have taken up the cause of the safety belt.

The American College of Surgeons—made up of men whose professional life is to a considerable extent spent in repairing the ghastly results of highway accidents—has taken in this. It has called on automobile manufacturers to provide "passenger-stabilizing devices such as safety belts," along with certain other built-in safety features. That term "passenger-stabilizing" explains the belts' value. In thousands of accidents, Mr. Spencer again, "little injury would result if the riders were held firmly in place so that they could decelerate WITH the car instead of

AGAINST it or THROUGH it onto the pavement."

Two leading automobile manufacturers are now offering safety belts as dealer-installed optional equipment. As mentioned before, individual buyers can choose from many makes. It is extremely important that the belts be anchored to something absolutely solid, such as the frame of the car, not the seat—in a bad crash the seat itself may tear loose. Also Mr. Spencer indicates, care should be taken that the belt chosen has sufficient strength, proper buckles, and other such features.

The seat belt is but one example of modern safety thinking and development as applied to automobiles. At the end of his article Mr. Spencer writes: "One automotive engineer has said the time has come to fix the points or safety equipment in the basic pattern of the car and design around them, as the industry now designs around the motor or radiator or drive shaft. Certainly nothing could be more basic than a solid preventive against the epidemic of disease of our highways."

Speedway Races Rained Out

Due to the adverse weather conditions Sunday, the "hot rod" races at Frederic Speedway had to be cancelled following just one heat.

Spectators were given "rain checks" good for next week's event. VanVierah driving "400" owned by John Gugin Sr. of Grayling won the only heat easily.

Don Danforth of East Jordan taking third in car #23. Hanover taking third in car #23. Hanover taking third in car #23. Hanover taking third in car #23.

Several new entries are expected for this Sunday's race and the Speedway management promises thrill, spills and chills to the spectators. The word is that barring accident No. "400" of Davison will be rolling this Sunday and will bear watching.
